I am a doctoral student studying Counseling Psychology in the Department of Educational Psychology at the University of Minnesota. I am asking for your help with a research study to better understand what it is like to have alopecia. Participation involves completing two interviews.

This study is for women with alopecia areata between the ages of 30-35, who developed their alopecia areata while in high school. Volunteers will receive $20 for participating and contribute important knowledge with the potential to help others.

For more information contact Heather Bemmels
Email: bemm0003@umn.edu